REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT

President Owen: "It is now a great privilege and honor for the President who was in high school when he first heard that Dan Evans speak to again listen to him share some words with us today. It's a privilege for me to introduce to you Governor Dan Evans."

REMARKS BY GOVERNOR DAN EVANS

Dan Evans: "You know, it a rare privilege to come before the Senate, I didn't do it very often, I was not invited very often to do that. Governor's stay on the second floor and Legislators normally the third. It's a delight to be here, it's a delight to be anywhere. I deeply appreciate Linda, you and Karen's remarkable remarks and the resolution which had more whereas than any resolution I've ever ran across. Usually the object of all of this affection is laid out prone in front of you in a memorial service but I'm delighted to be here to listen to it all and hope my granddaughters even believe a little of it. You know things don't change very much in fifty years. This capital and this chamber and the house chamber which I served in are very much the same with the exception of the electronics. They were replaced in those days by spittoons which were a raid at the side of most of the desks in the house and the senate. So, that's probably something for the better. Things don't change much in another respect. To go back into a little history, you know, as you gather today you're under a court order from the State Supreme Court to amply fund common schools. Fifty years ago we were under a federal court order. That time to redistrict to one person, one vote and we were wildly off of that goal at the time. At noon on January 11th the legislature took office and the new session began. In the 1964 election it was the democratic landslide and both houses controlled substantially by Democrats. I was not to be sworn in until Wednesday and Governor Rossellini was still Governor. Well, the senate led by its redistricting master mind Senator Bob Grieve immediately began work on a highly partisan redistricting bill. They created a senate juggernaut and on the first day they passed a redistricting bill over to the house. It only needed fifty votes to pass the house and Democrats had sixty members in the house. We were desperately looking for eleven house democratic votes. By now the corridors were clogged with lobbyists, each attempting to gain advantage from the survival war fare that was raging in the house chambers. We did everything we could to delay action and by noon we knew we had created enough uncertainty that we had a chance by to survive until noon Wednesday but it was a remote possibility. That afternoon Slade came to me along with Jim Doliver my Chief of Staff and said, 'We're going to have a tough time holding that bill off until Wednesday noon but we found something interesting. The constitution originally said the Governor would be sworn in on the second Monday of January but a law passed sometime afterwards changed that to the second Wednesday in January. We could hold a swearing in ceremony in the visitors' gallery of the house chambers at 12:01 Wednesday morning if necessary.' I immediately contacted the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. Richard Ott had been Republican legislator beforehand. He enthusiastically joined the conspiracy and on Tuesday afternoon telephoned me and whispered, 'I've just left the Supreme Court and I've got the seal of the State of Washington with me.' Upstairs the battle raged in the house. Late Monday session was followed by a long debate on Tuesday, it was interrupted by frequent party caucuses and as night came on Tuesday inexorably the democratic majority came closer to their fifty vote goal. It crept up to forty-eight, we thought we might have a chance to last until midnight. I called Nancy and said, 'If you want to see my inauguration you better come to Olympia right now.' She had to find a babysitter at nine o'clock in the evening for two young boys but she, my parents and her mother started for Olympia and our House Republican leaders prepared ultimately known the best speech never given. Tom Copeland our Republican legislator was to give a speech at 12:01 and end it by saying, 'Before you make a final determination on my suggestion to adjourn. I wish to advise you that here inside this capital at this very moment a Judge of the Supreme Court is prepared to administer the oath of office to Governor elect Daniel J. Evans and he will there upon assume the office provided by law. The new Governor would prefer to be sworn in at a joint session as it's usually done, the decision is yours to make. Let's show the people that we know how to be statesmen. Well, work began to leak out that something was brewing and finally at eleven p.m. the House adjourned, unable to complete the jerry maunder, the senate so confidently began. The Inauguration was held as schedule at noon on Wednesday. Foot note number one; it took forty-seven days and two vetoes before we passed a satisfactory redistricting bill and during that time one of the Senators got up on the floor of the senate after my second veto and said, 'We got another Italian Governor, Danny Veto.' I didn't appreciate that much but. Foot not number two; the next election the Republicans gained sixteen seats in the House of Representatives took control and kept it the next six years so it was a good redistricting bill. May you have an easier time this year and less interruption by the Courts? You know let me leave you with just three not admonitions but things I believe over the years and hope that maybe a little bit of each one of them will find its way into your deliberations. When I said forty years ago there are no republican schools and there are no democratic highways, there are no liberal salmon and there are no conservative parks.

And secondly, I'm not ashamed of the word conservative nor afraid of the word liberal and third I'd would rather cross the political aisle than cross the people. I still believe those. And frankly with all of the opportunities and offices that I've held and the things that I've done I still think the greatest single experience was the day I stood in seat number 98 in the House of Representatives and took the Oath of Office as a young legislator. It changed my life and it's been a real ball ever since and it ain't over yet."

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT

President Owen: "Governor, before you leave I would like to draw attention to the members of a great publication that I ran into on my way to Arizona to visit my family a week ago. Alaska airlines and they featured Dan Evan on the front page as well as a tremendous article inside. I'd be greatly honored if you'd sign this for me. Thank you very much for all your service to the people of the great State of Washington and to the nation for everything you've done. It's been a great privilege knowing you and having you serving this state and I wish you well with the rest of the family. Thank you very, very much for being here. Governor Evans, thank you."

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Kohl-Welles: "The first one is, as many of you know that another great leader in our state of Washington has been recognized and will receive a tribute here but former University of Washington President William Gerberding died late December, I believe on December 27. A memorial service is being held tonight at the Evans School at the University of Washington. Some of us are planning on having a tribute for him during the session. Second, you may know that on Sunday, January 11 was the celebration and affective National Human Trafficking Day and on December 31st President Obama proclaimed that the month of January is National Slavery and Human Trafficking Prevention month. Now, you all know we have worked a lot on this issue, it's very important and we were the first state in the country to enact a state trafficking law introduced by former Representative Velma Veloria. We've had thirty-six laws enacted since then and we are leading the efforts in the county and we will continue to do so this session. Thank you."

MOTION

At 10:43 a.m., on motion of Senator Fain, the Senate adjourned until 12:00 noon, Thursday, January 15, 2015.
